I truly believe that the people who work in this industry are building our future. A more prosperous future, which, in addition to being much more efficient, is also safer. My desire is to be a that team. - A winning team in every sense.

My goal is to contribute as much as I can to help in resolving the situation we all find ourselves in (some more than others), especially today during this pandemic. But regardless, I'm talki significantly different from the one we were in previous years. I am talking about problems from the segment of health (mental and physical), poverty, rising crime levels, global financial cr levels, and all of the above. I want to be a small part of the change. Change for the better and I am convinced that the right solution can only be found in technology. I'm not a hippy, I fully business aspect that goes into it. It takes money to be able to create some of those solutions. To make money you have to create great services and products that people love. And mayb of them will make a profit for the company, keeping the business model intact while at the same time solving major global issues.

In other words, when I found coding, I found my passion, my purpose, I found myself.

I'm a part of a small, but highly dedicated team that works exclusively for a client located in the UAE. It's not a rare case that I work by myself -starting various new projects, implementing re simply upgrading existing ones. That work may include semi-dynamic websites, front-end web apps, and full-stack applications.

Remote Fullstack Developer
html5, css3, reactjs, node.js, sails.js, redux, javascript, java, express, mongodb, mongoose, google-apps-script, twitter-bootstrap, git Worked on few projects starting from junior to the mid-level complexity. It all starts with writing user stories, making mockups, building simple prototypes, after receiving feedback, I would sta sometimes using MVC frameworks like Sails.js, but mostly pure ES6. Also solved few issues with Java, but only like 5% of the time. After that, I would leave the Node terminal and go to bro start building cool, responsive, fast and functional frontends using React.js. Also, familiar with Angular, but I prefer React. Additionally, I had to be very comfortable with Redux too. Every pro used Git for my version control. As I DB I used MongoDB all the time, but SQL driven DBs popped up now and then, Also, a lot of HTML and CSS knowledge went into it, but mostly JavaSc React frontend].

... and when we add Express framework (which I used a lot), we can surely and shortly say that I was a MERN stack developer.
